ARGUMENTS WRAP UP IN O'HAGAN TRIAL

Randy O'Hagan can be seen outside of Saskatoon's Court of Queen's Bench on Wednesday afternoon. O'Hagan is charged with first-degree murder in the 2012 shooting death of 34-year-old Lorry Santos, and Crown prosecutors say evidence submitted in court shows he should be convicted of murder in the first degree. A decision on the trial is set to be delivered on May 22, and if convicted, O'Hagan will face a sentence of 25 years without parole. Story, page 2. MORGAN MODJESKI/METRO

More beds bump cost of children's hospital by $20M

Total price tag now at $235.5M. Opposition cites announcement as evidence that province's use of Lean program 'has been a failure'

The Saskatchewan government says it will put up another $20 million to add beds to the yet-to-be-built children's hospital.

Health Minister Dustin Duncan says the extra money will increase the number of beds by 24 to 176.

He says the investment will bring the total cost of the hospital to $235.5 million.

The government put a hold on design plans earlier this month after it was determined the hospital was too small to accommodate Saskatchewan's expected population growth.

The new expansion design will delay construction by about five months.

The province expects to break ground in September and the hospital is scheduled to open in 2017.

NDP Leader Cam Broten says the additional beds and bigger facility should have been planned right from the beginning.

"Today's announcement is a real admission that the government's planning process by using Lean, bringing in the American consultants to do all the planning, really has been a failure," Broten said.

Lean is a program that looks for ways to reduce spending and streamline health care.

Broten also said that he's not optimistic about the current timeline for the hospital.

"We see a five-month delay but we see redesign having to occur, a very significant step," Broten said.

"I'm worried about what other shoe may drop because this is obviously a hugely important project for children in our province and families in our province."

Bangladesh potash deal sealed

Trade agreement.
Province expected to export at least $40M worth of resource

JACOB MORGAN

From left, PotashCorp CEO Bill Doyle, Premier Brad Wall and federal International Trade Minister Ed Fast sit at a conference table on Wednesday in Canpotex's Saskatoon office, where a trade agreement was signed between Canadian and Bangladeshi officials. JACOB MORGAN/METRO

A trade agreement signed on Wednesday between Canada and Bangladesh will see Saskatchewan export potash to that country for the first time in more than two decades.

Canpotex, the overseas marketing firm for Saskatchewan's three major potash producers, has won the contract to ship $40-million worth of the resource over the next year, as well as an additional $20-million option. This could amount to a total of 180,000 metric tonnes.

"We're lucky to have 45 per cent of the world's (potash) reserve," said Premier Brad Wall. "Whenever we open up a new market — and this is effectively a new market — that's a big deal."

He added that half of Canadian exports to Bangladesh already come from Saskatchewan, and this deal will strengthen those ties while also benefitting people in the province.

"The potash industry is important from a revenue standpoint for the Government of Saskatchewan, but it's even more important from an economic-impact perspective," said Wall.

"And what I mean by that is jobs."

Federal International Trade Minister Ed Fast said that the Canadian Commercial Corporation (CCC) negotiated with the Bangladesh Agricultural Development Corporation to reach this agreement.

The CCC, he explained, provides a guarantee to foreign governments that Canadian companies will uphold obligations, which gives businesses an edge "when they are competing in a fiercely competitive global marketplace."

Fast also said this kind of economic diplomacy is at the top of the Conservative administration's foreign-policy agenda.

"Opening new markets overseas is vital to Canada's long-term prosperity," he said.

Mohammad Nazmul Islam, a secretary with the Bangladeshi Agriculture Ministry, said in a speech during the announcement that Bangladesh has already achieved self-sufficiency in food production for its 160 million people. The Canadian potash should provide fertilizer to help them sustain that independence.

Last plea made for conviction in Santos murder

Crown prosecutors want a first-degree murder conviction for one of three men charged in the 2012 death of 34-year-old Lorry Santos.

Randy O'Hagan, 24, who police say is a known associate of the Alberta street gang the White Boy Posse, showed little emotion as senior Crown prosecutor Matthew Miazga presented his closing statements on Wednesday afternoon.

"What I can tell you is that the Crown argued that Mr. O'Hagan be convicted of first-degree murder and we made three arguments to that effect," he said outside court.

Miazga said the Crown is calling for the conviction on grounds the murder was planned and deliberate, it was murder for hire, and it was done at the direction of a criminal organization.

Santos, a mother of four, was killed on the morning of Sept. 12, 2012, in her Peterson Terrace home in what police called a botched killing connected to gang activity.

Miazga said the Crown "put forward the best case (it) could" and whether O'Hagan is found guilty is up to the judge.

O'Hagan's defence lawyer, Ian Wagner, made brief closing statements on Wednesday, including an argument the murder, which the Crown submitted was done on behalf of the White Boy Posse, was ordered by an individual and not the organization.

One of the other men charged in the murder, Kyle Halbauer, was convicted in November 2013 and is facing a life sentence.

Joshua Petrin, also charged with first-degree murder, is scheduled to stand trial in November 2014.

A Court of Queen's Bench judge is expected to deliver his decision on May 22, 2014.

Rebels claim Syrian forces used chlorine gas

In this photo, children are seen receiving oxygen in Kfar Zeita, a rebel-held village in Hama province north of Damascus. SHAAM NEWS NETWORK/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Proof? Activists have posted videos online depicting pale-faced people coughing and gasping for breath

Syrian government forces have attacked rebel-held areas with poisonous chlorine gas in recent weeks and months, leaving men, women and children coughing, choking and gasping for breath, according to Associated Press interviews with more than a dozen activists, medics and residents on the opposition side.

Syria flatly denied the allegations, which have not been confirmed by any foreign country or international organization.

Witnesses near Damascus and in a central rebel-held village told the Associated Press of dozens of cases of choking, fainting and other afflictions from inhaling fumes that some said were yellowish and smelled like chlorine cleanser. Some of those interviewed said they believe the gas was responsible for at least two deaths.

They said the fumes came from hand grenades and helicopter-dropped "barrel bombs," which are crude containers packed with explosives and shrapnel.

Activists have posted videos similar, though on a far smaller scale, to those from last August's chemical weapons attack near Damascus that killed hundreds of people and nearly triggered U.S. airstrikes against Syria. The new footage depicts pale-faced men, women and children coughing and gasping at field hospitals.

It's an accusation that carries high stakes, and the Syrian opposition has an interest in pushing such claims in hopes of spurring the world to take stern action against Assad, who faces a Sunday deadline for handing over all his chemical weapons for destruction.

Chlorine has a multitude of ordinary civilian uses, including laundry bleach and swimming-pool disinfectant. But in high concentrations, it can attack the lungs and asphyxiate victims.

Syria's use of chlorine-filled bombs, if confirmed, would be a violation of the chemical weapons treaty that Assad's government signed last year as part of a deal to hand over its stockpile.

On Wednesday, Syria's U.N. Ambassador Bashar Ja'afari said his government categorically denied the use of chlorine gas. Ja'afari further disputed that chlorine gas could be categorized as a chemical weapon, saying "it is a mundane substance used for bleaching clothes in the laundry or disinfecting swimming pools."

On Sunday, French President Francois Hollande told Europe 1 radio station there were "elements" suggesting recent use of chemical weapons, but no proof.

Ukraine

Canada deploying 500 personnel to monitor elections

Canada is sending a message to Russia by deploying up to 500 people to monitor Ukraine's presidential election next month, a cabinet minister said.

Employment Minister Jason Kenney said the observers are part of Canada's answer to Moscow's provocations.

Kenney said he's not worried about the Canadian presence antagonizing the Kremlin. "I hope that Moscow notices. We are doing this in part to send a message as with everything else we're doing in Ukraine," he said.

Kenney said one way Canada is showing its disagreement with Russia is to strongly support "free and fair" presidential elections in Ukraine. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Material washed along shore may be linked to lost plane

Authorities say unidentified material that washed ashore in southwestern Australia is being examined for any link to the lost Malaysian plane.

The search co-ordination centre said Wednesday evening that police secured the material that washed ashore 10 kilometres east of Augusta in Western Australia.

Its statement did not describe the material found.

The Australian Transport Safety Bureau is examining photographs to assess whether further investigation is needed and if the material is relevant to Flight MH370.

Augusta is near Australia's southwestern tip, 310 kilometres from Perth, where the search has been headquartered. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Paramedics treated drunk teen at Harper home: Reports

'Not a police matter.'

The RCMP is confirming that paramedics were called to Prime Minister Stephen Harper's residence early Sunday morning amid media reports that an 18-year-old woman was severely intoxicated.

In a statement, RCMP spokesperson Cpl. Lucy Shorey said an ambulance responded to 24 Sussex Drive. She did not describe the nature of the call, but said it did not involve Harper or his family.

"This was a medical call and not a police matter. It did not involve any of our protectees," Shorey said in a statement.

A Quebec radio station reported that the emergency call involved an intoxicated 18-year-old woman, who was taken to hospital.

J.P. Trottier, a spokesperson for the Ottawa Paramedic Service, confirmed that paramedics took a patient to hospital, but said he could not provide details about the gender, age or condition because of patient confidentiality.

"Because of the potential identification of the patient, we can't talk about it," he said in an interview.

It's believed that Harper's son Ben celebrated his 18th birthday on Saturday. Harper and wife Laureen also have a daughter, Rachel, who is three years younger.

Jason MacDonald, Harper's director of communications, declined to comment on the report and would not say whether Harper or his wife were home at the time of the incident.

The legal drinking age in Ontario is 19.

McDonald's decides to put its foreign worker program on hiatus amid criticism

McDonald's Canada is putting its temporary foreign workers program on hold while a third party conducts an audit on its use of the plan.

Stung by recent criticism of its use of foreign workers, the restaurant chain's vice-president of human resources Len Jillard said Wednesday the firm needs to pause the plan to prove to Canadians it is abusing neither the program, nor its workers.

Jillard said McDonald's has already informed the federal government — including federal Employment Minister Jason Kenney — about its plans.

"The reason why we're doing that is we want to communicate to everyone we're taking this very seriously," Jillard said. "We're taking a pause. We're making sure that we've got everything in order, which I'm convinced we have."

Penalties

In Winnipeg on Wednesday, Employment Minister Jason Kenney warned that employers who abuse the temporary foreign workers program could face fraud charges.

Three McDonald's franchises in Victoria and a pizza restaurant in Weyburn, Sask., are at the centre of program-abuse allegations involving Canadian employees alleging foreign workers were given priority work status and in some cases took their jobs.

McDonald's is in the process of taking full ownership of the three Victoria franchises from the Victoria operator who previously held an 80 per cent share in the three outlets.

Jillard said the company was setting up the terms of reference for the third-party analysis, but hadn't yet hired the firm that would do the work.

"It's responsible for us as a reinforcement of our core value of being responsible, ethical and caring for our employees that we take this pause right now." THE CANADIAN PRESS

The new twist on time travel debuted Wednesday as part of the Street View feature in Google's maps, a navigational tool that attracts more than one billion visitors each month. Street View snapshots will now include an option to see what neighbourhoods and landmarks looked like at different periods in the last seven years, as Google Inc. has been dispatching camera-toting cars to take street-level pictures for its maps.

Even though the photos only date back to 2007, some of them illustrate dramatic changes.

WE'RE ANGRY TAXPAYERS, SORT OF

HE SAYS

John Mazerolle
metronews.ca

If I didn't know any better, I'd say The Angry Taxpayer is a myth.

Indirect evidence tells me they exist. They are the power source for AM radio, the fertile soil of Ford Nation, the engine that keeps the Internet's comments sections humming.

But if I've met more than one or two Angry Taxpayers during my entire life then they've hid it well.

There's that one guy who holds court in every greasy spoon I've ever eaten in, but I think he might be the same guy doing a nationwide tour.

It's called "I'll Tell Ya One Thing" and it owes some of its sense of variation to Nickelback. I'm not suggesting there's a human being alive who likes paying taxes.

But people who "hate" their taxes hate them in the same way they hate doing laundry or taking off a Band-Aid. It's a chore worthy of sighs, not an abomination worthy of a Hulk Smash.

Yet I've always accepted that the public is like the bearded guy in 300, screaming, "WE ARE TAXPAYERS!!!" before kicking a public servant into a bottomless hole representing the deficit.

Only deciding to write a column about tax time made me think about it long enough to realize that just about everybody I know would've told the guy standing near the hole that he should be careful and then lobbied their city council for a guardrail or a sign that says WARNING: HOLE.

Frankly, I've heard more outrage from friends and co-workers about disappointing episodes of The Walking Dead than I have about Canadian taxes.

Even when there's a spending scandal, it's mostly partisan reflex — outrage if your personal bad guys are in office, an acceptable slip-up if you think the good guys are in charge. I've given this some thought as I prepare my own taxes — glumly, not angrily.

Why do we accept our taxes more passively than the stereotypes imply? Is it because most of us have had some ailment covered by universal health care, and have thus decided that lower take-home pay is worth the joy of knowing, for instance, that the neighbour you despise helped pay for your mole removal?

Is it that we realize even the worst scandal imaginable (e.g., a fake lake built for Rob Ford late-night parties in the middle of the Senate) only costs us about five cents a day?

Is it that we know if we actually had the money we'd waste it on lottery tickets and the new Johnny Depp film?

Or is it just that I live a blinkered existence and am oblivious to the seething rage of the Common Man?

I know it might be the last one, so I've been talking to people to get a sense of their rage.

Apparently the finale episode of How I Met Your Mother was really bad. Won't someone think of the children?

Wildebeest take on gruelling trek

Thrashing wildly in the water, thousands of wildebeest battle against each other to cross a powerful river. The scene of sheer panic among the animals in Kenya's Mara River — just north of the border with Tanzania — is part of the largest animal movement in the 21st century, popularly known as the Great Migration.

The herd's panic is depicted in the eyes of the wildebeest. The photographer likens the stare of this animal to Dante's Inferno in epic poem The Divine Comedy. METRO wildebeest — accompanied by 300,000 zebra — make their long trek from Tanzania's Serengeti Plains, further north to Kenya's Masai Mara National Reserve. Robot army amazes

Every now and again, a nifty technology company unveils a demo video of a robot snake or a robot cheetah or some such thing, and they're all very cool. But then the initial dazzlement fades and you're left with the vision of being chased through backyards and alleys by herds of them.

Same goes for these critters from SRI International. The near limitless possibilities of a tiny, highly co-ordinated workforce capable of small scale manufacture is amazing. But then comes the realization that this is more or less a robot ant army. What could go wrong?

Songwriter Shannon Lyon is enjoying a period of personal and artistic rediscovery.

After spending about 10 years abroad in Europe, the Canadian musician has returned home.

"I am falling in love with Canada," says Lyon. "Because I was away for so long, something changed in my brain."

His new place is on a dirt road off the Yellowhead Highway between Jasper and Kamloops in B.C., which is perfect for a guy who grew up in rural Ontario.

"I need my isolation. It's how I create," he said.

Lyon began his career with his band, Strange Days, in 1989 and earned a reputation performing in Kitchener, a smaller city west of Toronto. But it wasn't until around 2000, when he bought a one-way ticket to Amsterdam, that his creativity truly flourished.

"I was playing a weekly gig every Thursday night and cutting my teeth in Kitchener," said Lyon. "I just needed to pull myself out of some sort of rut that I found myself in."

The plan worked. Some of his most acclaimed albums, including 2003's Wandered, were released during this time.

Also residing in such countries as Germany and Spain, Lyon had to see the world before he could clearly see himself.

"The most potent way to get a story across is to have lived it," he said.

Now, Lyon is making his first record in Canada since moving back. Tentatively titled The Lights Behind, he said it is set to come out in late 2014 on Busted Flat Records and will be a retrospective with new material mixed in.

"I worked with producer Rob Szabo, a longtime friend of mine," he said. "He handpicked 20 songs from a 20-year recording span."

One of the songs, Barcelona, was originally featured on Wandered and finds a melancholy space between Neil Young and Townes Van Zandt. Written in the city of its name, Lyon said the track was influenced by an absinthe experience.

"I would sit down with a bottle and my guitar and just explore," he said.

Today, Lyon is completely sober, except for the occasional cup of coffee. He is focusing on nutrition, fitness, audio production and songwriting.

"When I was living in Berlin, I decided to pull myself out of that," he said. "I feel a lot more joy — less darkness."

And as someone who was always seeking an escape, sobriety is another adventure.

"It's a boundary dissolving experience. Once again, I pushed the limits," he said.

Feast your eyes on the world's Most Beautiful human

Congratulations to Lupita Nyong'o, who has been officially named the Most Beautiful human on the face of planet Earth by People magazine. Nyong'o rocketed to fame in the role of Patsy in 12 Years a Slave, for which she won an Oscar.

Growing up surrounded by Western images of attractiveness made it difficult to see herself as beautiful, she says. "Light skin and long, flowing, straight hair," she told People. "Subconsciously you start to appreciate those things more than what you possess."

Nyong'o, who was born in Mexico and grew up in Kenya, experimented extensively with her look as a teen, even shaving her head at one point. But now she craves simplicity: "I have been called beautiful with not one drop of makeup on," she says. "And also before I comb my hair or put on a pretty dress. Happiness is the most important thing."

Maybe Laura and Tom would date... if they ever met...

Laura Prepon is laughing off rumours that she's dating fellow Scientologist Tom Cruise. "I'm flattered because I think he's hot, so I'm like, 'Oh, that's nice.' And apparently he's very gentlemanly with me," the Orange is the New Black star joked with the Daily Beast during an interview.

"Apparently we get along great and he knows that I have a favourite bottle of wine that I didn't even know I had."

Prepon expressed her further disappointment with the tabloid reports during an interview with SheKnows.com, calling the story "false" for the record.

"Where are they getting this stuff? It's unbelievable to me," she said.

"Apparently, I'm dating Tom Cruise right now and apparently, he doesn't want me doing (Orange is the New Black) because I portray a lesbian and I'm a Scientologist."

And how does she know for sure that she's not dating Cruise? Because Prepon has never formally met him, which is a tough obstacle to overcome in a relationship.

Lohan reveals miscarriage, ex-beaus deny culpability

Lindsay Lohan dropped a bombshell during the finale of her Oprah Winfrey-produced reality show, claiming she'd had a miscarriage while filming the series — and now her ex-boyfriends are scrambling to clear their names, according to Radar Online. Sources close to Matt Nordgren says the reality star was blindsided by the news. "Lindsay never mentioned anything about it to him," a source close to Nordgren says. "He was shocked to hear about it."

And 18-year-old Ralph Lauren model Morgan O'Connor, who had a dalliance with Lohan last fall and made a brief appearance on her reality series, is making it clear to friends he had nothing to do with the shocking news.

A regal revolution. The Brooklyn Circus founder explains why he's 'shifting and changing' attitudes toward the American uniform

RICHARD PECKETT
Metro World News

Ouigi Theodore is teaching a generation of gentlemen how to take a little more pride in their appearance. OSUKE / METRO

Brooklyn Circus's garments offer classic esthetics and antique motifs while upholding the pillars of modern design. TOM VAN SCHELVEN / METRO

Ouigi Theodore, the founder of fashion label The Brooklyn Circus, is a man on a mission. What started as a manifesto to get Americans out of saggy jeans and sneakers has gone from the streets of Brooklyn to the style capitals of the world. It's as much to do with the charisma of the dapper dresser known as 'the Bearded Man' as the effect of global tastemaking via social media. The 38-year-old refers to the phenomenon as the 'global village'. It's an idea that's at the heart of label BKc — the modern incarnation of traditional craftsmanship and old-time dressing — that's woven from the melting pot of U.S. history and culture. He sits down to talk me through his 100-year grand plan and the true meaning of hipsterdom.

You're a dapper chap, so how long does it take you to get ready in the morning?
I'm a uniform guy, so it doesn't take me as long as you want to think. Oddly enough, I would literally wear the same rig for weeks on end — I just adjust with a cardigan or throw in a pop or change the hat.

The beard has been having a moment among hipsters for a few seasons now and you've been sporting yours for years. How do you define the term 'hipster'?
I recently found out that hipster was a term that was used to describe white men during the jazz era who were trying to be black guys and cool jazz cats.

That's a new one on me. Speaking of style cultures, why do you want to change the American dress code?
American culture has been identified as this super and ultra casual culture. It's really about sweatpants and trainers everyday. But for me, being from Haiti and the Caribbean, there needs to be a balance. We came into America with a certain level of discipline and it was a discipline of self-awareness and presentation and so I kind of married that to my experience. I bring a balance of tailoring and casual style into American sportswear.

You've got a 100-year plan, so how far along with changing the American style culture are you?
It's changing in small pockets internationally. It's not just in the U.S., thanks to the Internet. It's incredible to see something that you think is so local being picked up globally.

Is social media helping you get the word out?
Absolutely, totally. Social media is communication. I think people look at it sometimes as entertainment, when the reality is that the communication aspect precedes entertainment. As much as people are looking to see what's going on and writing LOL on posts, there's a lot of information being flushed through the network.

Do you find design ideas through social media?
Yeah, it's being able to travel the world everyday in small bits. I'm looking at what's happening in London and Japan and it's in real-time.

Why are the Japanese so often the first to discover new trends?
The Japanese have a special way of figuring out and hunting for what's new. It's such a competitive environment that they have to go and seek out the next thing. They love culture and anything that has a vibration or soul to it.

Do you identify with the Japanese pace of working or is it more about brand longevity for you?
Absolutely, totally. I want to be able to run into a vintage store 40, 50 years from now and see our product. It's a cycle: We buy a lot of vintage and we're inspired by it and we design off of it. We have to create something that'll become the vintage of tomorrow.

From the Caribbean with care

Antlers: From hokey to hipster

Stag trophies über cool in Germany.
Old world stuffiness reclaimed with humour

Not long ago, self-respecting young German urbanites would have turned on their heels if they spotted a mounted deer head or set of antlers in a bar.

In the sometimes subtle language of taste and demographics, taxidermy in Germany screamed old-fashioned, tacky and even a bit right-wing.

Whereas in Britain, for example, mounted animals might conjure up stately homes and quaint rural pubs, Germans would be more likely to have faint echoes of the Bavarian backwoods and a parade of Nazi and communist strongmen earning their macho bona fides with hunting exploits.

But in the tradition of hipsters the world over, stag heads have been flipped into an ironic statement by those self-styled urbane, creative and politically progressive types in the uber-cool neighbourhoods of Berlin, Hamburg and Munich.

And, in the next iteration of the trend, upscale home furnishing designers are even selling blinged-out deer heads with rhinestones and gold-plating.

The staid broadsheet Frankfurter Allgemeine Sonntagszeitung devoted a lengthy piece this year to the deer trophy, saying it had long escaped "grandpa's hunting hall."

"It was a dust-gatherer, part of a dead animal which, should you have ended up inheriting one, you didn't know what to do with. Would the rubbish collectors pick one up?" Jennifer Wiebking wrote.

She said that taxidermy first started popping up in modish bars and restaurants before conquering the private flats of the style-conscious, where they are of course hung only with a wink, and a nod.

"A rack of antlers is a wonderful style accessory to show that you have a sense of irony," she wrote.

Racking up the irony

"A rack of antlers is a wonderful style accessory to show that you have a sense of irony."
Jennifer Wiebking wrote in the staid broadsheet Frankfurter Allgemeine Sonntagszeitung.

'Retro trash kitsch'

Klaus Siebenhaar, a professor of cultural and media studies at Berlin's Free University, said that if many abroad think of "sauerkraut and sausage" when they think of Germany, Germans themselves link the stag trophy with their own national identity.

"It is the symbol of the German forest, of provincialism, of nature and at the same time of the petite bourgeoisie," he said. "It is the incarnation of German stuffiness."

He argued that mounted animal trophies were similar to the popular Jaegermeister liqueur which uses a stag's head logo and has also managed in recent years to straddle the student-pensioner divide. AFP

Cookbook of the Week

Mexican flavours in your kitchen

As the host of the PBS series Pati's Mexican Table, Pati Jinich proves that Mexican cooking is quicker and easier than most North Americans think.

Now she puts that concept to use in her book of the same name. Surprising in its simplicity and freshness, her recipes aren't overloaded with cheese or heavy sauces. Many specialities in the book Jinich learned from her mom and grandmother, while others are spins classics. METRO

What sounds Italian but rules Mexico?

Milanesa de pollo.

Believe it or not, this Italian-sounding recipe is among the country's most popular dishes

"The word Milanesa refers to beef, pork, veal, or chicken that has been pounded thin, breaded, and fried until deliciously crisp and golden brown," writes Pati Jinich in her book Pati's Mexican Table.

"My addition of tangy crumbled cheese gives the breading an extra layer of flavour, and the pinch of ground chile takes the Milanesas a step beyond traditional versions.

"I could eat Milanesa de pollo every day for the rest of my life. My kids feel the same way: I usually prepare a double or triple batch at a time, store them uncooked in the freezer, and pull them out as needed during the week."

1. In a large shallow bowl, whisk together the eggs and milk. Combine the corn flakes with the cheese, chile, and salt and spread on a plate.

2. Dip each chicken breast in the egg mixture, then coat it on both sides with the corn flake mixture, so the whole breast is covered. Set aside on a plate.

3. Heat 1/4 inch of oil in a 12-inch skillet over medium heat until hot but not smoking, 2 to 3 minutes. Add as many chicken breasts as will fit in a single layer, without crowding the pan. If the edges of the Milanesas aren't bubbling in the oil, raise the heat to medium-high. Cook for 2 to 3 minutes on the first side, until golden brown and crisp, then gently flip and repeat on the other side. Remove the Milanesas from the pan and set them on a paper-towel-covered plate and keep warm. Repeat with the remaining chicken pieces, adding more oil if needed. (If you are not serving them immediately, place the Milanesas in a baking dish, without the paper towels, and keep warm in a 250 F oven.) Serve hot.

HEALTHY HABITS

KEEP YOUR TEETH IN GREAT SHAPE

SHUTTERSTOCK

You have mere seconds to make a first impression and a healthy smile, whiter teeth, and fresh breath are all part of making a good one.

April is Oral Health Month, which means it's a good time to think about all the habits that contribute to a winning smile. The best way to keep your teeth in great shape are: Take care of your overall health, including good oral hygiene; whiten teeth as necessary; and be conscious of keeping your breath fresh.

Dr. Travis Stork

HEALTHY TEETH

A healthy mouth is part of a healthy body, says Dr. Travis Stork, a practising board-certified emergency medicine physician and an Emmy-nominated national television host.

When you don't take care of your teeth and gums, the results become very noticeable, very quickly — bad breath and stained teeth are hard to miss.

But poor oral hygiene can also lead to a more damaging problem — gingivitis. Over time, gingivitis, which is an inflammation of the gums, can cause gum disease and even loss of teeth.

Of course, you need healthy teeth and gums to eat and enjoy your food. Also, the condition of your teeth and gums can affect the way you feel about yourself too, Stork says.

Factors that affect the health of your teeth:

- Poor oral hygiene;
- Gingivitis;
- Unhealthy diet;
- Underlying health conditions.

HEALTHY SOLUTIONS

Good health comes with a healthy lifestyle, Stork says — stay active, eat healthy, and take care of oral health.

It's most important to reduce the amount of sugar, specifically in your diet, which is one of the main causes of dental problems.

"Cut out as much refined sugars as possible," Stork says. "Instead, enjoy the natural sweetness of fruits."

Oral hygiene is important, too. Brush and floss your teeth and rinse every day. Stork recommends brushing with an electric toothbrush for two minutes twice a day, flossing, and rinsing with an antiseptic mouthwash.

Use Crest Pro-Health Clinical toothpaste, Stork says. It can help prevent and even reverse gingivitis and early stages of gum disease.

Be sure to see your dentist at least twice a year for routine cleaning and a checkup. See your doctor for any health problems, too.

BENEFITS OF A BRIGHT SMILE

Whitening teeth is one of the easiest and most noticeable cosmetic changes you can make today. While whiter teeth brighten your smile, the benefits go much further than that. A beautiful, whiter smile is also good for health and wellness.

For example, looking good gives your self-esteem a boost and that will affect your self-confidence and how you feel about life in general.

Someone with whiter teeth, compared to stained teeth, appears to be friendlier. When people have a bright smile, they tend to show it off more often.

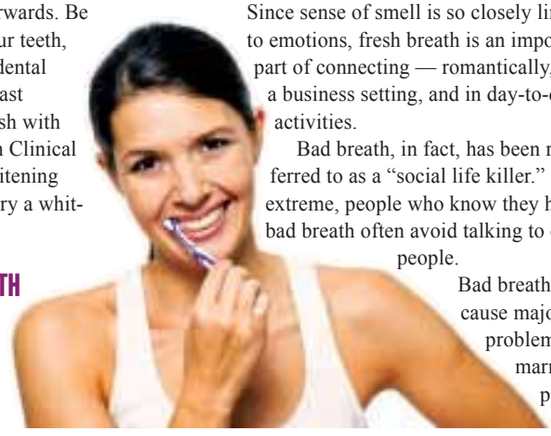
There is an anti-aging effect as well — research has shown that whiter teeth are associated with beauty, health and youth.

Factors that affect the colour of teeth include:

- Genetics — some people are born with teeth that are more yellow than white.
- Age — as a natural part of aging, some people's teeth discolour.
- Smoking — cigarettes leave behind yellowish nicotine stains on teeth; so smoking is just as unhealthy for teeth as it is for the body.
- Coffee, tea and red wine — drinking dark liquids can stain teeth, too.
- Medication — certain medications tend to discolour teeth.
- Oral hygiene — plaque and tartar buildup affect the colour.

SWEET SOLUTIONS FOR FRESH BREATH

For whiter teeth, quit smoking. Talk to your dentist or doctor about any concerns. If you ingest foods that may stain, rinse your mouth afterwards. Be sure to brush your teeth, floss, and use a dental mouthwash at least twice a day. Brush with Crest Pro-Health Clinical toothpaste, a whitening toothpaste, and try a whitening product.



FRESHER BREATH

Morning breath is one thing. But halitosis, or bad breath, on a more regular basis can negatively impact your day-to-day life, and it may signal dental or other health problems. Since sense of smell is so closely linked to emotions, fresh breath is an important part of connecting — romantically, in a business setting, and in day-to-day activities.

Bad breath, in fact, has been referred to as a "social life killer." In the extreme, people who know they have bad breath often avoid talking to other people.

Bad breath can cause major problems for married people, too. Halitosis is one of the main reasons people with partners see their dentist.

Factors that affect bad breath include:

- Poor oral hygiene;
- Strong smelling foods;
- Smoking;
- Health problems.

SWEET SOLUTIONS

Brush and floss at least twice a day to prevent odour-causing bacteria from settling in the mouth. If bad breath is caused by food choices, be sure to rinse your mouth, brush your teeth and rinse with a dental mouthwash after you eat. Talk to your dentist or doctor about your concerns. Be sure to always carry sugar-free gum or mints and mouthwash, too.

Series tie suits Blue Jackets just fine

NHL playoffs. Post-season win in Ohio is franchise's first at home in its 13 NHL seasons

Penguins goalie Marc-Andre Fleury deflects the puck away from Matt Calvert of the Blue Jackets during Game 4 of their first-round series on Wednesday in Columbus, Ohio. KIRK IRWIN/THE CANDIAN PRESS

Brandon Dubinsky scored with 22.5 seconds left in regulation to force overtime and Nick Foligno's wrist shot just inside the blue-line 2:49 into the extra session gave the Columbus Blue Jackets a 4-3 victory over the Pittsburgh Penguins on Wednesday night.

The Blue Jackets overcame a 3-0 deficit for their first home playoff victory in the franchise's 13 seasons, sending the series back to Pittsburgh for Game 5 on Saturday night tied 2-2.

Craig Adams, Chris Kunitz, James Neal scored in a span of 5:01 of the first period to stake the Penguins to a 3-0 lead. But Ryan Johansen and Dubinsky each had a goal and an assist and Boone Jenner also scored for Columbus, making only its second post-season trip.

It was the fourth time in the series that the team that scored first — and also went on to hold a 3-1 lead — lost.

With the Penguins hanging on to a 3-2 lead in the third period, Penguins goalie Marc-Andre Fleury made a big save on Matt Calvert's second shot in a flurry. Calvert later got behind Brooks Orpik on a breakaway and his forehand clanged off the crossbar, setting off a loud groan in the arena.

But Fleury went behind the cage to handle Jack Johnson's pass around the boards in the final minute. He whiffed trying to handle the puck and was stuck out of position, allowing Johansen to slide a centring pass through the crease where Dubinsky netted it with 22.5 seconds left.

What followed was the loudest sound heard in the Blue Jackets' dismal 13 seasons.

In the overtime, the Blue Jackets had the best of it - as they had for all but the start.

Foligno carried the puck through the neutral zone and was just across the blue line when he fired a low wrister that he tucked under Fleury's glove. As the players piled on top of Foligno, the crowd went crazy.

Horoscopes

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
Some things are worth worrying about and some are not. Do you know which is which? Chances are money won't mean as much to you over the next 24 hours as it usually does. That's good.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
You can't help but make a good impression right now. Just be careful you don't attract so many new friends that you neglect the people in your life who really matter.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
You don't need anyone's blessing for what you are planning. All you need is the confidence to begin, and the courage to follow through and finish the job. What are you waiting for? Now's the time.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
Your confidence is high and will rise even higher over the next few days. Friendships and group activities are under excellent stars. Get out into the world and see and be seen.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
With the Sun and Mercury moving through the status area of your chart, you will make friends with the right sort of people and there is no telling where that might lead.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
You want to take a trip but have no valid reason for travelling. So what? Cosmic activity in the most adventurous area of your chart urges you to let your impulses guide you. You're sure to end up some place that's fun.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
Make sure what you wish for is what you truly desire because once it is in your possession you may not be able to give it back. Also, be careful when making promises to friends. They will hold you to them.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
The planets indicate that you will gain more if you take an easygoing attitude to getting your way. Aim high but don't think you have to force people to give you what you desire.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
The cosmic picture is so good that most people will respond positively if you approach them as equals and partners. On the work front, especially, if you smile and ask nicely you'll get everything you need.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
You don't have to come on strong to make your point. On the contrary, others will be more receptive to what you say if you say it calmly and and with no hint of a threat.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
You get on well with most people but you also need to be aware that there are individuals out there who are so different to you in temperament that it's unlikely you will ever be friends.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
Someone you meet socially will attract you romantically but think carefully before you send out signals of love because the planets warn it may not be the right thing to do. Stay friendly — for now. SALLY BROMPTON
